KENNEDY, MACMILLAN TALKS EXTENDED...The complexities of the Skybolt missile problem have caused President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to extend their Nassau talks an extra day. The two men worked until late yesterday, trying to decide on a possible substitute for the Skybolt, which was to have served as Britain's nuclear deterrent for at least ten years. The two leaders will continue their discussions today and tomorrow. They spent an hour yesterday discussing the Congo situation, and said they "felt that a key element in moving toward a solution of the Congo problem was an agreement on the division of revenues between Katanga and the central government" in Leopoldville.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
January 3, 1963
Robert D. Woodward, FE 8-4995

Dr. Joseph W. Barker, former dean of engineering at Columbia University, will receive the Kettering Award for the year 1962, it was announced today.

The award is presented annually by George Washington University's Patent, Trademark and Copyright Foundation for outstanding work in the field of patents, trademarks, copyrights and related areas. It will be presented to Dr. Barker on June 20th at the seventh annual public conference of the Foundation at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington.

Both Dr. Barker and the late Dr. Charles F. Kettering, in whose honor the award is named, were among the six national leaders in research who were named honorary members of the Foundation at its inception.

Dr. Barker was dean of engineering at Columbia University from 1930 to 1946. During that period, he was on leave for five years while serving as a special assistant to the Secretary of Navy, where he was charged with policy decisions on all education and training activities. He was awarded the Navy Distinguished Civilian Service Award.

Dr. Barker became president of Research Corporation upon his resignation from Columbia. He served as chairman of the board from 1946 to 1959, and currently serves on the board of directors.

He recently was appointed as a consultant to NASA's office of applications, and is a consultant to the data processing group of Business Equipment Manufacturers Association.

Dr. Barker is on the advisory committee of the Grand Central branch of the Chase National Bank in New York, and is a director of the National Malleable and Steel Castings Company.

Dr. Barker received his B. S. and M. S. degrees at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He also holds the following degrees: LL.D., Bucknell University; Sc.D., Northeastern University; D.Eng., Case School of Applied Science; LL.D., Union College; D.Eng., University of Rochester, and L.H.D., Muhlenberg College.

Dr. Barker is a fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Association for the Advancement of Science and American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He served as president of the latter organization in 1957.

He is a member of the Office Equipment Manufacturers Institute, American Society of Civil Engineers, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Illuminating Engineers Society and American Society of Engineering.

He is a past president of Sigma Xi, and is a member of Tau Beta Pi, Phi Kappa Sigma and Theta Tau.

Dr. Barker lives at 45 Beechmont Drive in New Rochelle, New York.

Nominations for the Kettering Award are made by representatives of the Foundation's advisory council, national directors, research staff, and national and area committees. The award in 1961 was made to noted scientist Vannevar Bush.

A $335,000 grant has been made to George Washington University by the Ford Foundation to support a new program in elementary teacher education, President Thomas H. Carroll announced today.

The first students will be enrolled in the university's School of Education in August 1963. The grant will support the continuing program for six years.

The program is designed to prepare outstanding graduates of accredited liberal arts colleges for teaching in elementary schools, and will provide an intensive "fifth year" of training for selected students.

Students in the new program will take 30 semester hours of course work, beginning with a late summer session of six weeks. The fall semester will include observations of elementary school children and student teaching.

Public school systems in the greater Washington area are cooperating with the School of Education in the new program, and during the spring semester, students will serve paid internships in one of the schools. The internship will provide the student with an opportunity to assume the responsibilities of a beginning teacher with the help and guidance of university and public school staff members.

Students may request assistance to meet the financial obligation of tuition and fees, and of various other expenses which may be entailed in becoming a student in this program.

Students who successfully complete the program will be granted 15 semester hours of advanced standing toward the Master of Arts degree in education.

The Russian Language Club of the George Washington University will hold a Russian Christmas Party(traditionally held in January) on Friday, January 11, 1963. Sharon Hingel, club president, will give a talk on Russian Christmas customs. Members will then sing Russian songs and learn some Russian dances. Three games to tell the future of the new year will be played. Heated wax is poured into a glass of cold water and then a fortune teller describes the players future from the shadow the wax casts on the wall. In another game, each person reaches into a covered basket an takes out a small object which is supposed to foretell hi future for the year. In this game a needle means hard work, a paper clip means work in an office, model cars mean travel, a safety pin means safety, and son on. In the third game, players go out into the street and ask the firtst name of the first person they meet and this is supposed to be the name of the person they will marry. They are not destined to marry the person they speak to but the legend goes that they will marry a person with that name.

The Chad Mitchell Trio, the very popular vocal group, will be the performing artists at the Student Council Spring Concert at the George Washington University, to be held in the university's Lisner Auditorium on Friday, February 8, 1963, at 8:30 PM/

The trio, composed of Chad Mitchell, Joe Frazier, and Mike Kobluk, does not consider itself to be "folksingers", though the trio does make considerable use of folk material, as well as of songs dealing with topical subjects. The boys work in close collaboration with famous musical director Milt Okun to arrange theri material.

The group has appeared in such spots as the Blue Angel in New York, the Empire Room of the Palmer House in Chicago, the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, and the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

Their fifteen-week tour of Latin America under the auspices of the President's Special International Program for Cultural Presentations, a project of the U.S. Department of State, was a resounding success.

On television they have appeared on shows such as the Bell Telephone Hour, the Today Show, Pat Boone, and Bob Newhart.

They have recorded (for KAPP records) the albums "Mighty Day on Campus" and "The Chad Mitchell Trio at the Bitter End". They have also recorded the single disk, "The John Birch Society".

Concert appearances have included New York's Carnegie Hall (with Harry Belafonte) New York's Town Hall, and Orchestra Hall in Chicago.

TICKETS for the concert are now available at the George Washington University Student Union, and the Disc Shop, 1825 Connecticutt Avenue, NW, and the other area universities. The price is $2.25 for all seats.

FOR RELEASE ON SUNDAY, JANUARY 20, 1963
Robert D. Woodward, FE 8-4995

Wealth is a subject of interest of all Americans. Yet, as a nation, we are quite ignorant of the extent our wealth and how it is divided. We do not know how the national wealth is divided among the states. We do not know how it is distributed among our industries or even among the main sectors of our economy.

We know surprisingly little about the extent or condition of our wealth, especially in the form of machinery and equipment, buildings and other structures. We need to know what proportion of equipment in the textile industry, for example, is older than ten, twenty or even fifty years and how much of this equipment is not being utilized.

The first step toward answering these and a great many other questions concerning the national wealth has been taken at George Washington University where a one year exploratory study for a national inventory of wealth is about to begin. The study is being supported by a $90,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

The project will be directed by Dr. John W. Kendrick, professor of economics at the university.

The purpose of the study will be to formulate a practical plan to be followed in conducting a national wealth inventory. The inventory--when and if it is made--will probably be conducted by cooperating government agencies.

The university study will seek to establish guidelines on such problems as what type of wealth should be inventoried, what sectors of the economy can and should be distinguished, what characteristics of wealth should be inventoried, what agencies--government or otherwise--should participate in making the inventory, and what size geographical areas (states, metropolitan areas, etc.) it is feasible to inventory.

The current anti-trust development in the European Common Market relating to industrial property rights will be outlined by Dr. Pieter Verloren van Themaat, a high official in the European Economic Community, at George Washington University's Lisner Lounge next Monday, January 28, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend the free lecture.

Dr. Verloren van Themaat, who is from the Netherlands, is Director General of the General Direction of the Commission of the European Economic Community. His lecture will be the first in a series of public lectures on current international industrial property developments.

The lectures are being sponsored by George Washington University's Patent, Trademark and Copyright Foundation, and will survey the current development relating to international industrial property, which consists of creations of the mind, including inventions, useful "know-how", technical and ornamental designs and other products of man's ingenuity.

In 1957, Dr. Verloren van Themaat was elected president of the Expert Committee on agreements of the seventeen E.E.C. countries, with the task of preparing regulations on restrictive commercial practices in the context of the free trade area negotiations. In January and February of 1958, he headed an E.E.C. mission to the United States composed of experts on agreements from ten European countries. He was appointed to his present position in April 1958.

Moderator of the initial lecture will be Ephraim Jacobs, a Washington attorney and anti-trust specialist.

The second lecture in the series is scheduled for February 6 in Lisner Auditorium, when the speaker will be Geoffrey W. Tookey, Queen's Counsel, President of British Group of International Association for Protection of Industrial Property.

The Chad Mitchell Trio, the very popular vocal group, will be the performing artists at the Student Council Spring Concert at the George Washington University, to be held in the university's Lisner Auditorium on Friday, February 8, 1963, at 8:30 PM.

The trio, composed of Chad Mitchell, Joe Frazier, and Mike Kobluk, does not consider itself to be"folksingers", though the trio does make considerable use of folk material, as well as of songs dealing with topical subjects. The boys work in close collaboration with the famous musical director Milt Okun to arrange their material.

The group has appeared in such spots as the Blue Angel in New York, the Empire Room of the Palmer House in Chicago, the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, and the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal.

Their fifteen-week tour of Latin America under the auspices of the President's Special International Program for Cultural Presentations, a project of the U.S. Department of State, was a resounding success.

On television they have appeared on shows such as the Bell Telephone Hour, the Today Show, Pat Boone, and Bob Newhart.

They have recorded (for KAPP records) the albums "Mighty Day on Campus" and "The Chad Mitchell Trio at the Bitter End". They have also recorded the single disk, "The John Birch Society".

Concert appearances have included New York's Carnegie Hall (with Harry Belafonte), New York's Town Hall, and Orchestra Hall in Chicago.

TICKETS for the concert are now available at the George Washington University Student Union, 2125 G Street, NW; the Disc Shop, 1825 Connecticutt Avenue, NW; and the other area universities. The price is $2.25 for all seats.

FOR RELEASE WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1963

Robert D. Woodward, FE 8-4995

Dr. Burnice H. Jarman, Professor of Education at George Washington University, has been elected President of Pikeville College, Pikeville, Kentucky.

Pikeville College authorities announced the appointment today effective February 1.

Dr. Jarman has been a member of the George Washington University faculty since 1939. He became Professor of Education in 1947, and teaches courses in the history and philosophy of education.

Dr. Jarman has also held several administrative posts at the university: Director of Religious Activities from 1944 to 1947; Registrar and Secretary of the Faculties from 1945 to 1950; Assistant to the President from 1950 to 1951, and Dean of the Summer Sessions from 1955 to 1960.

From February 1960 to February 1962, Dr. Jarman served as Chief Advisor on Higher Education to the Ministry of Education of the national government of Korea, under the sponsorship of the United States Department of State. Dr. Jarman's contributions to Korean education earned him citations of appreciation from the Republic of Korea's Ministry of Education and the Seoul National University. Ewha Woman's University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters in 1961; he was the second man to be so honored by the world's largest women's university.

Before coming to George Washington, Dr. Jarman was a member of the faculty of St. Alban's School in Washington. From 1941 to 1945, he served as Director of Instruction in the Arlington County (Virginia) Schools, but he severed his connections there when he was appointed Registrar at the university.

Since September 1951, Dr. Jarman has served with the U. S. Office of Education as a member of the U. S. Civil Service Committee of Expert Examiners. He has been a consultant to many Federal agencies, including the National Security Agency, U. S. Air Force, U. S. Naval Dental School and the U. S. Army Dental School. He is an honorary member of the faculty of the U. S. Army Management School at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

Dr. Jarman received a B.S. degree from West Chester (Pa.) State College, and holds Master of Arts and Doctor of Education degrees from George Washington University. He is listed in Who's Who in America, Who Knows and What, and Leaders in Education. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honorary; Phi Delta Kappa, education professional organization, and Pi Gamma Mu, national social science society. He was President of the Westminster Foundation for the National Capital Area from 1948 to 1953.

Dr. Jarman is married to the former Naomi Virginia Crain, and they have two children, Richard and Patricia. The Jarmans live at the Adams House, 2016 North Adams Street, Arlington, Virginia.

Student Council elections will be held at the George Washington University next Wednesday and Thursday, February 6 and 7, 1963 from 8 AM to 8 PM. This will be the first time the elections have been held in February. They were formerly held in May. Due to a referendum held in November, 1962, by the outgoing student council, the date of the elections was moved to February.

Other changes in the election procedure include the abolition of outdoor campaigning along G Street, and the use of voting machines for the first time. Instead of the outdoor campaigning candidates will speak in open forums on Monday, February 4, in the university residence halls, sorority rooms and fraternity houses. Monday, February 4, is the first day of classes of the university's Spring Semester. Tuesday, February 5, candidates for the major offices will speak and answer questions at a special forum at 8 PM in the Hall of Government, 710 Twenty-first Street, NW, Room 1. All day on Tuesday, February 5, unused classrooms will be reserved for candidates' use to speak to students. The caspaing information center in Woodhull House on the university campus, 2033 G Street, NW, will be open all day Tuesday, February 5, for students who wish to obtain election information.

Voting will take place February 6 and 7 in Woodhull House with four voting machines from Snyder and Son in Baltimore, Maryland, being used. Students formerly marked ballots by hand. Election results will be announced at the Student Council Spring Concert in the university's Lisner Auditorium on Friday, February 8, 1963. The Chad Mitchell Trio, popular singing group, will be the performing artists at the 8:30 PM concert. Following their performance the results of the elections will be announced.
